

The main body of the worksheet is a large grid for calligraphy practice. It features a background of diagonal lines sloping downwards from left to right at a 45-degree angle. Overlaid on this background are horizontal lines that define the writing area. The page is divided into four distinct vertical sections by the ruler and 'X' markers. Each section contains a series of horizontal lines, with a light gray shaded band between the top and bottom lines of each section, likely serving as a guide for line height or slant.
